Sita was being kept prisoner in the palace garden, surrounded by Ravana's demon guards.

Hanuman told her that Rama would rescue her. Then he tried to get away but the demon guards caught him and took him to Ravana. There he was tied up with ropes of snakes and Ravana ordered the guards to set fire to his tail.

But Hanuman was clever and he managed to escape. He flew around the city setting fire to the houses then, with only a slightly singed tail, he leapt across the sea and hurried back to Rama.
